HOT WHEELS

As part of a Parsi Resource Group programme, hundreds of young and old bikers rode from Dadar Parsi Colony to Malcolm Baug in Jogeshwari to create community awareness among the younger generation. The 700-odd bikers stopped at all the Parsi colonies in between and the rally finally culminated at the Dadar Parsi Colony

—Photographs by Pradeep Kocharekar

WINDOW SNACKING

PRASHANT RANGNEKAR

Kalyan's best-known vada-pav chain is a generations-old institution started by a mill-worker to pay off debts

IN KALYAN, the first branded pattie-in-a-bun is not a multinational name. For, long before the burger chains came calling, this little township on the fringes of Mumbai already had its own branded vada-pav, the Khidki Vada-pav.

sees the making of the masala and the chatni. "It's a very personal affair for us and also a trade secret. If one takes our masala and adds it to boiled potato, then he too can get the same taste," Vaze adds.

When Khidki Vada began, the family would buy 5 kg of potato boiled in a pressure cooker. Today, they own a huge

Turning Back In Time

This smart piece of engineering turns engines and coaches around. But WR's turn-table also has history to recount